

Weekday Truck Speeds on Interstates from January 2019 through December 2021

Average weekday truck speeds on interstates by month in 2021 were mostly about 5 mph higher compared to the same months in 2019 due to impacts from the pandemic, which resulted in better mobility. 2021 speeds were lower than the months from April 2020 to July 2020 when interstates experienced some of their highest speeds due to the onset of the pandemic and statewide stay-at-home orders.
